Simple Way to Help Youth Victims of Super Typhoon Haiyan  Two years now since supertyphoon Haiyan hit the Philippines, some of the youth victims were unable to go back to school due to inability of their families to recover economically from the effects of the typhoon. Some of them resort to illegal drug dealings and other crimes to feed their families.

A group of semi-retired IT professionals have joined forces to create Project Angela campaign which is now live at Kickstarter.

Once funded, the team aims to provide Information Technology training to poor and bright out-of-school youths who are passionate and have the aptitude for IT but do not have the resources to continue with their education. The team will focus on the victims in Eastern Visayas being one of the poorest regions of the Philippines.

Donors have a selection of rewards to choose from in return for their donations.
