With so many online stores out there, businesses must work hard to make theirs stand out. Not only does the website need to be user friendly, responsive, easy to navigate, but also be optimized for different devices, SEO and offer a secure payment option. If this sounds like a good option for you, then you need to find a web developer with experience in ecommerce and keep him on your payroll to run periodic updates once your site is ready. We have researched and published an article that includes the differences between web design and web development to help you find a custom solution for your business.
