Yellow, 3 owners, Royal Enfield's Continental GT is a cafe racer with performance, ability and authentic appeal. Royal Enfield's Continental GT, like its namesake of the Sixties, is a stylish cafe racer with low handlebars, bright yellow paintwork and racing-style seat. It is the most powerful and glamorous bike yet. The joy of the Continental GT is that it combines the Bullet's brand of easy, non-threatening performance with considerably increased style and chassis ability. The look is authentic and in some ways the ride is, too. You can even fire the engine with a kickstarter. Despite the Continental's racy image, the riding position dictated by the cafe racer style clip-on bars is not too aggressive. The bike is slim, light and manoeuvrable. Its engine is flexible for a mid-sized single, and changes efficiently through its five speeds. The handling is very stable, while taut suspension, Pirelli tyres and fairly generous ground clearance add to the appeal. The single front disc and Brembo caliper give excellent stopping power. The Continental has style and period charm. The North West's finest family run motorcycle dealership, £4,250 p/x
