How Does Mesotherapy Work?

Mesotherapy is the micro-injection of traditional medication, homeopathic medication, and vitamins into the mesoderm, or middle layer of skin, acting as a "medicinal bullet" that is delivered directly to a target in the body. Orally administered medication, on the other hand, is distributed throughout the body and only allows a smaller dose to reach the target area. Injections directly into the skin allow the skin to absorb the medication more efficiently. Mesotherapy works by stimulating the body to heal itself and regenerate a new skin layer.

Using a Mesotherapeutic process known as Mesolift, vitamin injections under the skin rejuvenate cells, activating them metabolically and stimulating natural collagen and elastin production. This process not only reduces the appearance of existing wrinkles but also helps prevent new ones from forming. Mesolift can help "age-proof" patients of any age - some patients start in their mid-20s, others in the
